KIERSTED ANGRY

Says "Brindamour" Had Hand-cuff Filled Off.

Officer Robert Kiersted has lodged a complaint with Prosecuting Attorney C. E. Meigs for the arrest of "Brindamour," who has been mystifying a house full of people at the Jacques twice a day the past two weeks. For damaging personal property is the cause the cop has against the theatrical jail-breaker.

One evening last week Kiersted was one of the stage committee which was selected at every performance of "Brindamour's" act to see that everything is fair. Kiersted professed a chain and handcuffs, but "Brindamour" refused to try them. The other evening, however, Brindamour did put them on and it took him forty minutes to extricate himself, and then he had to retire to his cabinet.

Brindamour does not claim to be able to perform the impossible. He just claims to have a trick which no one else can do, and that's all.

Now, Kiersted claims Brindamour did not release himself from the chain and handcuffs by fair means. He says Brindamour had the cuffs filed or cut to get out of them, and that Brindamour palmed off another pair of cuffs and chain onto him, and that he did not discover the fraud until the other day. Meanwhile, Brindamour has Kiersted's cuffs and chains and no doubt by this has acquainted himself with the machinery of the lock, for he is ever on the alert for locks and handcuffs with strange and intricate mechanism.

Prosecutor Meigs was asked if he was going to issue a warrant for the jail breaker's apprehension and he merely smiled. Kiersted is mad however, and the prospect is that he will have a chance to get madder.

Aldermen Vote For Badges.
JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 19.—Jersey City's aldermen want to be notified and so have voted themselves badges. People have not been showing the board the respect it thinks is due it.

Alderman W. Cyril Herbert, unable to stand this any longer, told the board last night that something must be done, and the badges are the result.

OPENING STREETS

Conduits Would Do Away With a Lot of Trouble.

At the present time as well as at all seasons since the city commenced to permanently improve the streets, bad feeling exists between the officials and plumbers who do a big business in putting in new service pipes and repairing ones that have outlived their usefulness. It would be hard to tell which is the more to blame for this trouble, but leaving that aside, wouldn't it be a good thing to remove the source of these bickerings and have done with them once and for all. The remedy is quite simple and is applied in every municipality where the officials look ahead a day or two. In Waterbury before the city paves a street, property owners along the line are notified to make all necessary sewer, water and gas connections on or before such a date and if anybody neglects to comply with the order the city does the work and charges the bill to the owner. This is all right for the time being, but in course of time pipes give out for one reason or another and then the work of tearing up the street commences with the result that the material is rarely if ever put back in as good shape as it was before. All this tearing up of permanent pavement could be done away with and money saved by the construction of a very small conduit from the main pipe to the outer edge of street so that when a water pipe had to be replaced or a sewer pipe repaired the only opening the contractor would have to make in the street would be one large enough to disconnect the service pipe from the main. As soon as this was done the old pipe could be pulled out through the conduit into the cellar, the new one pushed in and connected at greatly reduced cost over the present plan. Besides this it would save the opening of the street, sometimes almost for its entire width, the battering of sidewalks and other things that are a source of much confusion in Waterbury. The department of public works ought to give this matter a little consideration and see what they think of it.

BROOKLYN BRIEFS

—A ball was given in the Lithuanian hall on Green street last evening by the St. Casmir society.

—The Junior Amateur Base Ball league will meet this evening at the rooms of the Quaker Athletic club.

—A new bell has been placed in the Duggan school and it now rings for the beginning of each session and at recess.

—George Kezemkas of Washington avenue, who has been confined to his home the past two months with rheumatism, is able to be around.

—Mrs Hannah Connelly of Bank street is suffering from an injured ankle received by falling Wednesday morning while alighting from a hack.

—William Shannahan of Lafayette street is a member of St. John's Musical association, which rendered the musical in the Buckingham last evening.

—Ward, the player who is being tried at short by Waterbury, is an intimate friend of "Ted" Sullivan of Brooklyn. Sullivan and Ward came from the same city in Pennsylvania.

—The Niagara university base ball team was scheduled to play in Hartford to-day, but the game was called off because of the weather. William Lallier spent the day at his home in Brooklyn.

—James Madden, the newly appointed fireman, started on his work to-day. He is stationed at the Leavenworth street house, succeeding William O'Donnell, who resigned during the week.

—The Brooklyn and Town Plot improvement committee is scheduled to meet this evening at the Lyceum. In all probability the members will be addressed by Arthur Blewett, who will speak on tree culture.

Struck a Great Water Gusher.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 19.—The project of the Ithaca water board to secure a gravity supply of artesian water from the Cascadilla valley was given an impetus by the striking of the fourth 60,000 gallon per day gusher at Ellis Hollow. Mayor Newman believes Ellis Hollow wells will supply half a million gallons daily, or enough to supply East Hill, upon which Cornell university is situated.

Confessed to $10,000 Mail Theft.

WILMINGTON, N. C., April 19.—The arrest here of Edward A. Nelson, a railway mail clerk, who confessed to abstracting from a pouch a packet containing $10,000 consigned to New York, was the culmination of an investigation which was started immediately after the theft was reported.

MUSICAL TREAT

Given By St John's Association at the Buckingham.

One of the most pleasing musicals yet given in the Buckingham was that of last evening when St John's association made a most favorable impression on a large audience which was more than satisfied with the program rendered. Although when the organization decided to render a concert in the Buckingham, many of its friends were of the impression that the association was undertaking a big task, both financially and as to the quality of music that would have to be furnished in view of the excellent concerts that had preceded, nevertheless the organization had the necessary confidence and last night's program showed that the confidence was not misplaced, for the musical was a triumph for the performers. The chorus work was fine, the soloists were well appreciated while the Euterpean quartet composed of Mrs. Wright Calvert, Miss Bessie Goodwin, Mrs. Robert May and Mrs. Isaac Beecher Clark was encored again and again. It is one of the best quartets heard in Waterbury in a long time and those present last evening will be very desirous of hearing it again in the near future. It certainly added much to last evening's success.

The work of the chorus under the direction of Isaac Beecher Clark was a rare treat and the thirty-five voices at times last evening made the audience realize what a fine chorus it was that was singing. Evidently the members of the chorus have profited well by the instruction of their leader as was shown by their shading, the blending of the voices and the spirit with which they rendered the various numbers last evening.

The opening number, "King Waldegar's Chase" gave the audience an insight as to what to expect as the number was sung with a certain finesse that one anticipated something even better before the finale. And they were not disappointed in their expectations for in Sullivan's "Lost Chord" which was given with the string orchestra, piano and organ accompaniment, the chorus surpassed the work of the opening number. George Tompkins, the youthful violinist who is making rapid strides in his profession was concert master, with A. J. Blakesley at the organ and Hans Saro at the piano. In this number, the chorus sang most effectively. The blending of the voices, the shading, the tonal balance, a sufficient amount of sentiment, were there, the composition being exquisitely rendered by the singers, not to mention the result obtained with the piano, organ and orchestra accompaniment.

"King Olaf's Christmas" was the final number on the program, and this was also well handled by the chorus.

It is natural for an audience to favor the fair sex, and many undoubtedly lean towards the Euterpean quartet when selecting the feature of last evening's musical for that reason, but by an impartial music lover the selection would in all probability have been based on ability. The quartet was forced to respond to four encores and the audience did not seem to be content even then. The four voices blend finely, and for intonation, with a delightful delicacy, with just the right enunciation, the quartet will equal any similar body that can be found within many miles of Waterbury.

The tenor of the evening, Mortimer Howard, has a good voice, with plenty of power and the requirements of a well trained voice.

"Song of Thanksgiving," "Thou Art Mine All" and "Du Bist die Run" were some of his selections.

Thomas Daniels, the basso, also was in good voice and with his wide range and the power of which he is capable, he did his part in a praiseworthy manner. His German song, "In Eilen Kuhler Grunde," was one of his best efforts.

"The Two Grenadiers," with which the audience is familiar, sung for an encore, was beautifully rendered. Mr. Daniels can be depended upon to hold his end up almost at any time. His best effort was "The Sword of Ferrara," an old Spanish melody. It was given with a dash and spirit that showed the ability of the singer.

One of the features of the evening was the piano playing of Henry J. Dunn, whose solos were very enjoyable. The "Fantasie" in C minor of Johann Sebastian Bach, was excellent and given with the artistic interpretation by the player, brought Mr. Dunn into immediate favor with the audience. His other numbers, especially Liszt's "Rhapsodie, No 10," called for much skill, but though difficult they seemed easy to the fingers of the player. This was Mr. Dunn's first appearance in Waterbury and music lovers will expect to see and hear him frequently hereafter.

The concert was in keeping with other events of a musical nature given in Music hall, although much more enjoyable in many respects for the varied program produced. In a classical way it did not equal the Bonn recital, but in regard to pleasing the audience it was one of the most successful yet given.

Too much praise cannot be given Isaac Beecher Clark, who prepared and managed the excellent concert, for the success of the affair. Hans Saro, always a favorite, accompanied the soloists in his usual artistic style, and music lovers know what that means. A. J. Blakesley, who presided at the organ, made his instrument heard in the few numbers he was slated for. It would have been a rare treat had this well known organist been put down for the performance of some of the works of the great masters. Many people want to hear this grand organ without the accompaniment of other instruments or voices.

When you need a pill, take a pill, and be sure it's an Early Riser. DeWitt's Little Early Riser is a safe, sure, satisfactory pill. The pills with a reputation. They do not gripe or sicken. They are sold here by H. W. Lake Drug Co. and Joseph A. Smith, No 820 Bank street, Brooklyn.

SLEUTH M'DONALD

Located Man Who Had Been Robbing Railroad Co.

Former City Sheriff J. W. McDonald, who is now chief of the police force of the Consolidated railroad company, made an important discovery yesterday. A young man named Oliver Taylor known as "Cowboy Bob," has been keeping people living in the suburbs of New Haven in a state of terror, holding them up at the points of loaded revolvers and robbing them of things of value. A few mornings ago he was arrested on a highway in the vicinity of Hamden, after striking terror throughout the neighborhood. He was riding a fast horse, such as cowboys use in their work.

For some weeks the police of the railroad have been trying to locate large quantities of goods that were taken from freight cars. The whole amounted to several thousand dollars worth. Taylor was questioned by Chief McDonald, after being arrested and a visit was made to his home in North Haven and enough goods were recovered to stock three good sized stores. Taylor will be held on a series of charges for theft.

FAMOUS WRITER HERE.

Author of That Old Temperance Hymn "Throw Out the Life Line."

It falls to the lot of few persons to pen a hymn which finds its way into 27 languages, and which has led many thousands to Christ. This hymn is "Throw Out the Life Line," and the author is in this city. He is planning to speak the coming Sunday in our midst. Rev. E. S. Ufford, a New Englander, wrote his masterpiece while residing in the eastern part of Massachusetts. He was then pastor at Westwood, and felt moved to compose something which might stir his young men to more enthusiasm in the rescue of others from sin to godly living. He was actuated somewhat by his liking for Rev. Dr. F. E. Clark, who was moved along a similar channel to inspire his young men, in what afterwards grew into the mighty C. E. movement.

REV. E. S. UFFORD.

Author of "Throw Out the Life Line."

Mr. Ufford states that in 1886 he used to go out with several of his young workers into neighboring villages to sing and exhort. He was a boy reared along the shores of the Long Island sound, and often borrowed some of the imagery from the tragedies of the sea. He wrote his song with the sole purpose of bettering within the souls of his converts a desire to save sinners, which had its desired effect, for they were quite effective as a praying band under their musically inclined leader.

The life-line preacher, as he is now called, has sung his way on a tour around the world, and to render his sermons more effective makes use of a government life line. To illustrate his solo, which has actually rescued seven sailors from a shipwreck near Boston. He also carries with him a small organ to aid him in his work of singing and preaching the gospel.

He comes highly endorsed by such men as Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, who says: "It has been my joy to meet him. The whole evangelical world is indebted to him." Also Dr. T. L. Cuyler, who wrote, "A happy new year to the man who has made so many souls happy in Christ Jesus."

To-night he is to be present at the service of the First Congregational church, Rev. A. Dismore, pastor, on Sunday at the morning service he will speak on "Every Christian a Life Saver." At the Sunday school of the First Baptist church, he will be there to sing and describe his hymn.

POLICE ON LOOKOUT.

For Man Wanted as Witness in Highway Robbery Case.

The police are on the lookout for one Charles J. Terwilliger, an old man, who is wanted in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., as a witness in a highway robbery case. Terwilliger is said to have come to this city from Hopewell Junction about a month ago and is thought to be running a lunch cart, but the department has been unable to locate him. The man was held up and robbed at Poughkeepsie some months ago. The police of that city have arrested a fellow answering the description of the one who robbed the old man, consequently the testimony of the latter is badly needed. Information concerning Terwilliger's whereabouts will be gladly received by the police.

Celebration in Maine.

Portland, Me., April 19.—Although Maine was a part of Massachusetts when the battles of Lexington and Concord were fought, the residents of this state to-day, for the first time are celebrating these events by observing Patriots' day as a holiday.

By recommendation of Governor Cobb the last legislature abolished Fast day and substituted Patriots' day in its place.

There were no special exercises but the day was observed by a general suspension of business.
